“See It. Believe It. Achieve It.™” is a motto that took Lori-Ann Muenzer to an Olympic gold medal, and carries her forward in sports, business, and every day life. It’s more than a motto: it’s a way of life.

At 38 years old, Lori-Ann was the underdog in cycling at the 2004 Athens Olympics, but as far as she was concerned, she was just getting started. A story of personal challenges, physical setbacks and the unbelievable drive for success earned Lori-Ann a permanent place in the history books as Canada’s first ever Gold medalist in cycling.

“Going for Olympic Gold!” is a straight-from-the-heart message about motivation and discipline – what it means to believe in a dream, but mostly about believing in yourself. Lori-Ann freely shares how to set your own road map plan to achieve that goals you want to reach, and gives you practical and useful tips so that you can apply it in your life, whether it’s business, sports, or just plain having fun!
